Correction: Protocol for a scoping review on misuse of psychoactive medicines and its consequences

This article was previously published with missing text in page number 4, the last paragraph under heading 'Identifying relevant studies', as given below was missed:

‘During the conception phase of the MisuMedPT project, a considerable number of articles and reports, resulting from non-systematic searches or included in alerts originating from PubMed and from a scientific documentation centre, came to the authors’ knowledge and were analysed. Some of the evidence has been identified as possibly relevant for the purposes of this scoping review and, as such, was added to the initial list of abstracts to be reviewed (source classified as ‘other sources’)’ which is now added in the article.
